

Three-Way Malaysia Parley Set

TOKYO, June 3 (UPI)—Leaders of Indonesia and Malaysia agreed today to send their foreign ministers to Manila this week to continue discussions on the proposed Malaysia federation, which both Indonesia and the Philippines oppose.

President Sukarno of Indonesia and President Tengku Abdul Rahman of Malaysia announced the Friday conference in a joint communiqué following a two-hour conference described as a "frank and amicable exchange of views."

During the final stage of the communiqué, Rahman reasserted Malaysia's determination to inaugurate the new nation Aug. 31, and Indonesia did not abandon its "nonrecognition" policy regarding the potential Malaysian confederation on its frontier.

Sukarno indicated he has a better understanding of Rahman's aims now. Both described the conference as "very, very cordial."

The meeting of foreign ministers in Manila is to pave the way for a conference between Rahman, Sukarno and Philippine President Diosdado Macapagal.

The Philippines oppose Malaysia's claim to the southern parts of North Borneo, a portion of the projected federation.

The Sukarno-Rahman communiqué said the two nations "decided to take all possible arrangements would take every possible measure to refrain from making scurrilous attacks on and disparaging references to each other."

U Thant Warns of Dangers Involved in World Cold War

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass., June 3 (UPI)—U.N. Secretary General U Thant said the only alternative to continued cold war is "total war."

Thant yesterday told a record 350-member graduating class at Mount Holyoke college that total annihilation of mankind will befall man unless he can "face and confront the stark reality of fear and uncertainty in the stockpiling of nuclear arms."

"One remarkable feature of the cold war is that each side is so completely convinced of its own correctness. The two superpowers have in fact undergone some subtle changes since the major exponents of these theories expounded their dogmas."

"Each side is convinced that it alone is right and the other side is wrong, that the other side is a war-monger," he said.

Thant called for a "cult of political dogma" as to reach the goal of international socialism as the first imperative to survival to our planet."

"It seems to me that the one of the first steps to be taken is to attempt to get away with the cold war, which has been the dominant feature of international relations since the end of World War II."

referred earlier is becoming nearer, clearer, deadlier than before," he said.

Thant was awarded an honorary degree of doctor of laws for his "unique and distinguished role in the search for a just and lasting peace."

Reds Pestered With Sub Trouble

WASHINGTON, June 3 (UPI) — Previously secret congressional testimony disclosed yesterday that the Russian submarine fleet is having so many mechanical difficulties that some submarines have had to be towed home on the surface by tugs.

Rep. John G. Connelly, D., Pa., said there have been at least six instances of this, including one off the coast of Alaska and another in the Caribbean during the Cuban missile crisis. He said they could not go back down under the water.

True to Form

Ex-President Harry Truman was true to form in commenting on remarks made by Sen. Barry Goldwater. The senator said, "The more I think about it, the more I think Harry Truman will go down in history as one of the greatest presidents." He said Truman had a forthright policy, which no one can deny.

Mr. Truman's reaction was right in character. He has always approved of anything that attacked him or his policies, but reacted with invective to any criticism. Here is something anyone can understand because it is so completely human.

When Mr. Truman was President, he didn't always have public support, but it was seldom the public was unaware of what he was doing. Mr. Truman had a way of expressing himself that left no doubt about what he was saying. His two successors might well envy Mr. Truman's clarity of expression.

Only the passing years will determine if Mr. Truman will go down in history as one of this nation's greatest presidents. However, it is fairly well established already that he will not be known as one of the poorest.

Mr. Truman can be counted among the frontrunners for another title for presidents. Few, if any, could beat Mr. Truman when it came to having the common touch. He was not a polished statesman who always seemed aloof, but was a politician who might have been equally at home serving as a preacher committee man.

CHECK SIGNALS

The navy goes on with its search for the nuclear submarine "Thresher" after announcing photographs had been taken of the submarine some 8,400 feet below the surface. The original announcement late last week left nothing to doubt. Dr. J. Lamar Worzel, assistant director of the Lamont Geological Observatory, was quoted as saying the pictures were definitely of the sunken submarine. Although a little more cautious, Vice Adm. Elton W. Grenfell, commander of the U.S. Atlantic fleet submarine force, said the photographs "appeared to be definitely correlated with the missing submarine."

Yet 24 hours later, the navy announced in Washington that "detailed analysis of underwater photographs . . . determined that none could be definitely identified as showing the Thresher."

The world is left to wonder how some of the navy's experts could be so certain of their find one day and others so doubtful the next day.

The navy would want to be positive of the identity of wreckage before using the diving bathyscaphe Trieste to take further photographs. Yet it was announced before the Trieste was moved from the West Coast that it would help in the search for Thresher.

More to the point, how could the experts who were quoted at first be so far wrong? It would have been quite another matter if the second announcement had come after more photographs had been taken and analyzed.

Perhaps photographs, taken by cameras being dragged through the ocean on cables about a mile and a half long leave much to be desired. But then, so does the navy's unexplained about-face on what is shown in those photographs.

PHONY ARGUMENT

If everyone in the United States were to resort to the argument of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, the U.S. budget would skyrocket immediately out of sight, far beyond today's outrageous totals. In advocating that the U.S. should pay a greater share of U.N. expenses, he said, "A nation which is willing to spend billions to send the first man to the moon cannot retreat from making generous payments to the peace-keeping operations of the United Nations."

By the same argument, it would be possible to justify any expense whatsoever in contributing to the health and welfare of any human being, with special emphasis on Americans. And couldn't the American Cancer Society, for example, use the same argument to back a request for unlimited federal funds in helping to find a cure for cancer? It would be equally possible to argue that every American should have adequate housing, better clothing and better transportation.

Even a more basic fault can be found with Senator Humphrey's phony argument. He presumed U.S. taxpayers approve of the expense of sending a man to the moon when he says, "A nation which is willing to spend billions . . ."

If Americans had a chance to vote on the moon project, there's a real deal of doubt about the results. Hardly any group of citizens involved in the discussion can agree on necessity of the program. Likewise, there's a wide difference of opinion about whether the U.S. should underwrite the expenses of the United Nations.

Perhaps if Americans did have the chance to vote on national programs that cost a great deal of money, they'd taxes might go down considerably.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

BY ANDREW TULLY

WASHINGTON, June 3—People who do not wish to spend even a few hours listening to the bellowings of Boris Godunov or appreciating the technique of the latest ballerina have been treated to a crumb of the action of the arts at the National Cultural Center, the new cultural center of the Soviet Union, known as the National Cultural Center.

There's going to be a movie theater, too.

This flick temple will be built to accommodate 1,500 spectators in legitimate theaters, adding $1 million to the $6-million dollar estimated cost of the center. It will seat about 600 persons in a theater where appreciation of art is little short of Macbeth's "Kennedy's is impaled this is misplaced hauteur. The motion picture is perhaps the only national sport to culture. From here, it will be acknowledged that most movies are a gaudy imposition on the public weal, but a few good ones are still made every year and, anyway, the landscape is littered with flops from the legitimate theater, opera and ballet.

NO COPS-AND-ROBBERS FILMS — Despite the instant success such a thought would have had, it is not clear that there should be a place for television in the center. The argument in favor is simple but eloquent: TV is here, and can't be made to leave. Meanwhile, as in the movie industry, an occasional good program may be produced by the amateur intellects who supervise the selection business.

In his glances over the inclusion of a movie house in the center, however, the average American can excuse for surging acidity doubts. The way this cultural gimmick has been played out, he might as well have asked to sit through those interminable "art" flickers which specialize in gloomy landscapes and those long silences designed to permit the actor to run through the repertoire of Freudian grimaces and gestures.

He might as well onto the selection board lest "To Kill a Mockingbird" is barred from the joint, too embarrassing.

ONWARD AND UPWARD WITH THE ARTS — It is feared, is going to be the trouble with this National Cultural Center—if it ever gets built. To the characters concerned with such things, culture is what most people can't understand, and there is the danger that it will be up to its sponsors and their pals. If so, the center will be a flop, because it takes money to run such projects and there isn't enough of that kind of money among the so-called intelligentsia who supervise the selection business.

In his glances over the inclusion of a movie house in the center, however, the average American can excuse for surging acidity doubts. The way this cultural gimmick has been played out, he might as well have asked to sit through those interminable "art" flickers which specialize in gloomy landscapes and those long silences designed to permit the actor to run through the repertoire of Freudian grimaces and gestures.

Sady, the American intelligentsia seems to feel that the Russian equivalent seems to feel that the Russian equivalent seems to feel that the American equivalent should be the same kind of entertainment fare enjoyed by Paris, London and Rome. The fact that the Teopka housewife, in fact, does not, is airy dismissed; she is told, in effect, that she's got to stand still and be educated and stop enjoying "Bar Bar" and Bobo.

IMPLICATIONS OF "CULTURE" — Possibly self-appointed critics of the right, like the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, are right. They say it is a sin. Because among other things, culture is defined by Webster as "a particular stage or advancement in civilization . . ."

And American culture, by and large, has not advanced beyond the point where Mrs. Teopka housewife still likes an occasional tune with her record player.

In that connection, the boys always made in their biggest mistake. This was in designating the complex as a CULTURAL CENTER. To the average American husband bellowing at the range of sex appeal in the center, it was a sure guarantee that a naughty word implying enforced boredom, with overtones of effeminate males in skin-light blouses. He is not going to pick for over any 30 million dollars for that kind of thing.

WILDERNESS BILL FOR THE BIRDS

If you lived in a heavily populated area where you see more black asphalt than green chlorophyll you would be no doubt enthusiastic about the wilderness bill that passed the senate.

Out here in the West, however, where it is still out to say we have wide open spaces, the bill is a must. It is a must, according to many, something that is for the birds—literally and for the bears and cougars and other wild creatures who thrive left alone.

Bert Cole, state land commissioner, can work himself up into a state of high wrath in about three days talking about the bill. He claims timber lies job for loggers and mill workers and says it is wrong to lock up merchantable timber—especially in a state with so many national parks as big as Rainier and Olympic which provide more wilderness than our own.

But the bill would tacitly admit, what may society expect in the near future?

One is led to wonder if a bit of juvenile court look-see might be in order.

FAMOUS LAST WORD

"He thinks a car isn't operating right if it doesn't make at least as much noise as a jet plane!"

GENTLEMAN IN THE FOURTH ROW

The opposition, the wilderness legislation coming primarily from the West where wild country contains natural resources essential to the West's economy. A good compromise would be to confine wilderness areas to those states which have been occupied by man for less than 100 years. One could still do with less acreage rather than more except around large cities—Longview Daily News.

WAY UP THERE

Many Oregon residents imbued with laudable civic pride probably are pleased that among the Americans who have climbed to the top of Mt. Everest are two Oregon men, William F. Morris of Corvallis and Luther G. Jensen of Eugene.

Perhaps when they return these young men can give us further enlightenment on why men climb mountains and particularly the highest peaks in the world. They have some interesting comments on the subject. Mostly, it seems, it boils down to man's inner need to prove himself physically. There was a time when physical exertion was essential to survival. Perhaps it still is.

A great deal of time, time and effort have gone into the assault on Mt. Everest, and leave mountaineers well. One who does not have the urge to conquest, at least in that field, may consider the mountain a waste of time and even a bit ridiculous in an era when jet planes can fly over Everest's summit and astronauts are preparing to soar to the moon. But mountain climbers, like all other sportsmen, are not normal.

I left in consultation with Mr. Unanue and Mr. Jensen, even if we are not sure—The Oregonian.

"What's he thinking of having it tattooed—in fading ink, of course?" Peter Edson

The opening sentence of the speech was aimed at Michigan, and I hope that while I succeed in that, I will succeed also in convincing you that it is my purpose."

The 850 people in the audience responded unanimously with a huge laugh of disbelief.

The real highlight of the speech came while Romney was itemizing a census of all Michigan industrial, human and natural resources.

"Michigan's No. 1 crop in value is corn," said the governor with undisputed pride. When the audience clapped, he added, "Real corn, not corn oil, corn oil, corn oil, corn oil."

"Would the fact that you were born in Mexico make it impossible for you to become a presidential candidate?"

"There ain't no candidacy and don't care."

"Do you think of co-existence, containment and liberation as national policies?"

"They're too big to comment on."

"Aside from all that, what do you think of Texas?"

"There ain't no place like Michigan for me to live."

"Are there any circumstances under which you would accept the Republican nomination for president?"

"I would like to be nominated under circumstances which I will seek." When this evasion drew another public outburst, he added: "I'd take the Republican national committee that would nominate Michigan, I'd take a Sherman."

"Do you consider that the Michigan where he started from wasn't good enough?"

"It's not that I'm not fond of Michigan, but I'm not fond of Texas. I also lived in Texas as a refugee after my family was driven out of Mexico by the revolution. The federal government sent me to Texas and I was surplus there and we lived on canned salmon. My older brother still can't eat salmon. But whatever they blow about in Texas come on up to Michigan and we'll be happy to have you here."

"That put him right back in the saddle again."

"James Marion Marlowe is a safe bet that Soviet Russia would be occupied by the communists in the mid-1970s."

"With United Nations action it also is reasonably certain that South Africa could be no unified Congo."

"And back to the subject of the Soviet Union, James Marion Marlowe is a safe bet that Soviet Russia would be occupied by the communists in the mid-1970s."

"France and Belgium, both of which recently joined the UN, are also expected to find some device by which armaments can be met without admitting a change of heart."

"The main problem is the Soviet Union," he said.

"If the Soviets could reduce the U.N. to an impotent debating society simply by withholding funds, that would pay off in UN operations with which they disagree."

At a meeting of the Soviet Union's foreign ministry, members, including France, Belgium and Nationalist China, have paid lip service to either the UN or the UN's role in the Middle East operations.

Under UN rules, all are subject to losing their vote after failing two years behind in their payment of dues.

As a matter of pride, the Soviets scarcely could afford to plead that they are too poor to pay.

France and Belgium, both of which recently joined the UN, are also expected to find some device by which armaments can be met without admitting a change of heart.

"The main problem is the Soviet Union," he said.

"If the Soviets could reduce the U.N. to an impotent debating society simply by withholding funds, that would pay off in UN operations with which they disagree."

They failed conspicuously to implement a weapons-free zone in the Congo. They were boycotting the U.N. at the time of Korean intervention.

Despite persistent efforts to reshape the U.N. to its own advantage, the Soviet Union never yet won a major victory in UN debates.

Similarly, each of the above nations directly counted to Soviet power.

Despite persistent efforts to reshape the U.N. to its own advantage, the Soviet Union never yet won a major victory in UN debates.

On the other hand, it is not clear that the communists are ready yet to abandon their plan to dominate the world organization's place.

James Marion Marlowe is a safe bet that Soviet Russia would be occupied by the communists in the mid-1970s."

"It's not exactly a guess," said North, "but I think both sides would know that East had dealt and passed. Then he had shown up with us club to club and said, 'I'm not in.' Jack, if he had also been there, he would have opened the bidding so you made a bad play, not a bad guess."

LDS Apostle Speaks for Rupert Meet

RUPERT, June 3—Elder Harold B. Lee, apostle of the LDS church, admonished young people to be morally clean and told parents that they are examples of what their children are to become when he spoke to about 2,000 church members at the state quarterly conference Sunday in the Mindenka Stakehouse here.

He urged members to be educated for eternal life as well as temporal, to know where weak points are and work to overcome them at all times; to teach righteous thinking and lay a good foundation for the uplifting of soul and肉体 there is strength in family unity.

Rodney Hansen, state president, who conducted both Sunday sessions reminded members of the anniversary of the restoration of the church.

He said, which is the authority of leaders to act for God and also the power through which the church was organized. He challenged priesthood leaders to be more like Jesus Christ in their example in righteousness, nothing received on Earth will bring more joy.

Elder Don Raamussen, Salt Lake City, member of the church home teaching committee outlined the new home teaching program which will go into effect in the church in January, 1964. It is not a new program, but one that has been used in the church previously and is now being reinstated. He outlined the need in the church for home teaching and the responsibility and opportunity it will place on the priesthood.

He reminded members of the rewards and blessings which come in doing things they should do. He pointed out people are becoming what they are going to be.

Also speaking in sessions of the conference was Elder William H. Bennett, Salt Lake City, missionary committee; President Jay Merrifield, first counselor in the state presidency; President Earl H. Johnson, second counselor; Forrest Ohlmueller, state mission president; Leroy Blacker, newly-appointed chairman to direct the home teaching program in the Mindenka Stake.

Music was furnished for both sessions of the conference by the combined choirs of the two wards with Arlene Newwood as organist and Earlene Stevenson and Louisa Atwood as choristers. Stake chorister Leader Kent Severson conducted singing and Dolly Bergman played instrumental music and accompanied.

Derald Green and Dale Garner offered prayers at the morning session and C.H. Harper and O. Key Peters offered prayers at the afternoon session.

Overflow crowd from the tabernacle was housed in Rupert third ward buildings on Eighth Street during conference sessions by means of direct flights.

Special priesthood and missionary sessions were held Saturday afternoon, addressed by Elder Raamussen and Elder Bennett.

Statewide conference meeting was held for all Methodist priesthood members and their wives at the tabernacle.

Navy Renews Its Submarine Hunt

PORTSMOUTH, N.H., June 3 (UPI)—The navy today lowered the search for a missing submarine to the bottom of the North Atlantic in a renewed search for the nuclear submarine Thresher.

A team of inquiry investigating the disaster met behind closed doors again to draw up a three-part report on the sinking of the $4 million dollar submarine.

The Thresher had been away following the dismaying disclosure that underwater photographs first believed to be of the sunken submarine actually showed parts of the camera and equipment used in obtaining the pictures.

God-Centered Thinking Asked by New Church Head

BOSTON, June 3—A return of "God-centered thinking" is the world's most urgent need, said the new president of the Christian Science church.

Speaking before the church's huge annual meeting thronging in Boston, Mrs. Helen Wood Bauman warned that the scientific advance taking place in the world today are in danger of being misused.

Influence in technological and human inventions

is again tending to divert thought from God," and neglecting "to give Him credit for a great release of mental energy," she declared.

Instead of "indifference to God," men and women are tending to lose sight of the center and circumference of their being, the source and fulfillment of their honest aspirations."

Mrs. Bauman called upon church members "to help the world in its struggle against the attitudes and tendencies that defile mortals."

The "self-centered human-centered tendencies" must give way to a "divine energy," she said — to an energy that "Christianity holds within itself." All was well, she said, if people applied the simple teachings that make "the focal point of love and interest."

Such worship "acknowledges God as the only source of intelligence and skill, and insinuates that He loves you in His heart and soul and mind and strength," she said.

The God-centered thought is constantly refreshed at the fount of intelligence and love.

"When God is fully understood as underlying all constructive developments, when He is seen as the One who loves us, then will all man's delight in turning to Him," said the new church president.

"All that is worth possessing, worth pursuing, worth expressing must be linked with the One creator, the One who loves us in every circumstance of life, with the God who demands our love."

The address was presented in The First Church of Christ, Scientist — known as The Mother Church — before several thousand members of the church all over the world, including Idaho.

They heard annual reports from many church departments indicating stronger religious activity and interest among young people.

A large number of high school and college students are attending the church, becoming church members, subscribing to the Christian Science Monitor, and sending in their own articles to the religious periodicals. It was related, among the outstanding spiritual leaders reported at the meeting were some by Sunday school students.

The establishment of a Christian Science society in Bangkok, Thailand, was cited as one of the latest additions to the church's international growth, which now totals more than 3,200 congregations.

In their annual message to the meeting, the Christian Science board of directors described the major distresses in the world as "the result of man's lack of divine love." They called for a "compassionate, outreach-loving love for mankind" as the basic remedy.

The retiring president, Ralph E. Wagers, Chicago, also emphasized the importance of returning to the "relinquishment of divine love." He said, it would help to bring the "spiritual climate" in which all the great problems of the world can be solved.

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

by STELLA

MONDAY, June 3—Born today, you have an unusually strong will power, but not emotional restlessness. Because the two traits are actually incompatible, however, you may find yourself faced with the problem of trying to reconcile them better. You can really get on with the business of establishing yourself in the world, if success in this field is what you want. The "good" is your ally; how will it take precedence in your restlessness — spells success in general.

Things may not always go your way, but when this is the case you must learn to act in a situation and discourage and with such intelligence and will power as you have, you could easily develop the knack of turning things to your advantage. The "good" is your ally; gain thereby will be all the more appreciated for the struggle involved in attaining it.

Basically, domestic, home and family are the mainstays of your life, and you must make it extremely important that you choose your mate with care. Do not be swayed by second best, for in marriage the game is won or lost.
